Bicentenary of the Birth of Thomas De La Rue

De La Rue made significant improvements on cards of card games.

In 1884 De La Rue introduced the Swift, a fountain pen that had its own reservoir of ink and really worked.

In 1840 De La Rue developed his envelope folding machine.

Thomas de la Rue was born on 24th March 1793. With his sons Warren and William firmly established in the company, Thomas retired on 31st December 1858. He died on 7th June 1866.

In 1853 De La Rue became involved into stamp production. The stamp on shows Britain's 4d carmine (SG 62).

In 1860 De La Rue produced for the first time banknotes. The order for £5, £1 and 10 shilling notes, came from Mauritius.

The company that started life producing straw hats and playing cards has become a world leader in high security printing and payment systems technology with production facilities in a dozen countries.
